What is the Sacramento Pro Developmental League (SPDL)?

The SPDL is one of the premier stages for professional basketball players to showcase their talents and abilities.

Entering its 21st year, the league has enabled many players to further develop their skills helping them fulfill their dreams of reaching the highest level of professional basketball.

The program has two focuses: to prepare players for NBA summer camps and allow them to develop their conditioning and skills in a structured competitive environment. The SPDL offers a unique developmental program designed to help players continue to learn and improve in the off-season, by focusing on all aspects of the game.

Jameel Pugh, Sac State

Guss Armstead has worked with and helped develop players such as Bobby Jackson of the Grizzlies, Matt Barnes of the 76ers, Troy Hudson of the Timberwolves, Jason Hart of the Kings, Mike Wilks of the Sonics and many more.

"The league has improved consistently in talent and competitiveness. It is clearly among the best in the U.S. The talent level is of such a high quality that many NBA franchises use the pool to select players for rookie and Veteran camps."

— Jerry Reynolds, Director of Player Personnel,
Sacramento Kings

Exposure

Scouts, coaches and player management firms from all around the globe regularly scout the league for outstanding prospects. NBA stars participate in front of sell out crowds.

Bobby Jackson,
Memphis Grizzlies

Kevin Martin of the Sacramento Kings and Matt Barnes of the Philadelphia 76ers all participated in 2005.

International and Minor League superstars include: Phil Ricci (Spain), Quemont Greer (Philippines), Isaac Fontaine (China), Joe Shipp (Albuquerque - NBADL), and David Jackson (Idaho - CBA).

How to get in the game...

If you received an official invitation it is because we feel that you have the talent to play professionally.

The SPDL is an invite only league.

Act quickly if you are interested, as this will be limited to 25 of the top players. Invited players must submit their application and non-refundable $200 fee by May 1st.

Please fill out the attached application and send it in promptly, or sign up on line at www.tothehoop.com. If you have any questions, email info@tothehoop.com.
